GRAYLING, MICHIGAN, OCTOBER 27, 1921

OSCAR P. SCHUMANN, Editor and Proprietor

NUMBER 42

T. N. T.

AN EXPLOSION OF PEDIGREE TRUTH.

(Notes of the Grayling School.)
EQUITY—? (In School as well as court?)

The meanest man I ever saw Allus kep inside o' the law;
And ten-times better fellers I've known
The blame gran'-jury's sent over the road.

HAPPENINGS.

A very enjoyable time was spent by the members and wives of the school board and faculty Monday evening, when a Halloween party was given in honor of Mr. Bates. All passed through the labyrinth of terrors and emerged into the pleasant decorated rooms beyond. Games were enjoyed by all and an appropriate lunch was served, after which all joined in the telling of ghost stories.

Classes.

O boy! Ain't this gran'-n-d. No school Thursday and Friday in the High School as one more teacher has decided to attend the State Teacher's Institute at Detroit. There also will be no school for Miss Wescott's and Miss Lockoff's pupils.

The Freshman will entertain the Sophomores Friday evening at a Halloween Masquerade Party.

The Lyceum course which will be given under the auspices of the Senior class is the best that can be procured. Tickets for a single night are 50c for adults, and 35c for children. The season tickets are only $1.75 and $1.00 so we urge you to buy these. Get your seats reserved Tuesday afternoon and evening at A. M. Lewis Drug store, 5c.

The dates of the Course will be:
Nov. 2—Sterling Male Quartet.
Dec. 13—Shubert Ladies Quartet.
Jan. 1—Arthur Irwin, Magician and impersonator.
March 3—Hawaiian Quartet.

April 11—Wirt Lowther, Lecturer. Come the first night and you will not miss the others.

The Telescope.

Ruth McCullough—Would I make a good salesman?
Hester Hansa—No. You would make a good saleswoman.

E. Schumann had a dream one night. And died a little later.

The neighbors said it was from fright. She dreamt the radiator.

(Across the Quinn Board.)

Eleanor Schumann is no more 'tis true.
Because the radiator
But she's so happy in heaven now.
She says she's Glad.

Oscar Taylor after smelting of a dead soldier—
"Say, Mike, e-can you tell me where the other side of the street is?"

"Sure across the road."

O. T. "Thash funny. Richards told me it was on this side."

Miss Gideon—(in civil gov't class) What will the ladies wear in the Senate when they are elected?

Ivan Cameron—It doesn't make any difference in a Sennet.

Famous Closing Lines.

"Thats taking the 'boss' down."

Ida Walden as she finished typing the dictation.

ARE YOU SOMEBODY.

In your later home have you acquired prominence, or are you just on the road?

No matter—there is a place where you are far more than just a "no-body."

It is your own home town. To the folks at home you are somebody. Do them the same honor and keep them cataloged in your mind.

Your home town paper makes this possible. It is kept gatherer of news of vital importance in its field.

It is as metropolitan in tone and make-up as it is consistent with its special mission—the purveying of 100 per cent pure news about neighbor to neighbor; it is chock full of character—a perfect mirror of the life of its district—your "old stamping ground."

Subscribe for your home town paper!

Your merits may not be appreciated, but you ought to be thankful if your faults are not exaggerated.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. BAILEY

County Agricultural Agent

Good Things.

Amid all our troubles good things are happening in Crawford County.

Let us never fail to count our blessings.

Fine.

Melvin A. Bates who does not till a foot of land and who has none to sell, fitted up a suite of rooms for the county agent at a cost of twenty-five dollars, and furnished a stove. Total cost not less than thirty dollars, exactly the amount the Farm Bureau members are asked to pay in three years to help maintain their organization.

Mr. Bates has done this to help the Farm Bureau and agriculture in Crawford County through the county agent.

Others are trying to help us. This should encourage us to help ourselves, too.

Bradie Appointed.

C. L. Bradie, not long ago a county agent, then the able secretary of Michigan State Farm Bureau, was recently appointed a member of the State Board of Agriculture.

This Board governs our Agricultural College. It is not at all likely that this appointment would have been made if we had not had a State Farm Bureau.

Pugsley Appointed.

Another good man has gone to Washington to represent the farmers in the United States Department of Agriculture. He is Chas. W. Pugsley, editor of the Nebraska Farmer.

He has been appointed Assistant Secretary of Agriculture. He has been in close touch with farmers all his life.

Seeks Reduced Rates.

The President of the National Farm Bureau has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to take steps to lower freight rates to 10 to 20 per cent on necessities of life.

Advices Shippers to Beat Strike.

Acting upon advice from the Secretary of the Interstate Commerce Commission, the State farm bureau traffic department is advising all Michigan shippers with commodities that they would move soon to get under way at once if that is possible.

Advices from the I. C. indicate that Washington is almost thoroughly convinced that a rail strike is inevitable and that an extended tie-up of transportation is likely. Shippers are urged to get busy before October 30 when the strike is scheduled to start.

City Paper Praises Farm Bureau.

"The Press places confidence in the integrity and leadership of Farm Bureau officials."

Big Business.

Since July 1 the Seed Department of State Farm Bureau has shipped out 384,461 pounds of seeds.

State Farm Bureau shipped 159 cars of fertilizers in August.

Last spring ten thousand blankets were sold by the Farm Bureau.

Orders have been placed for twenty-eight thousand blankets for fall sales.

Sales of guaranteed virgin all wool suitings at Farm Bureau headquarters in Lansing averaged a thousand dollars daily during spring and early fall.

18,000 checks are being mailed out to members for wool sold through State Farm Bureau.

Feeding Hints.

I have secured to give away a few copies of "Feeding Hints for Dairy-men" to the first few who will write me or call at the office over Grayling Post Office.

This was prepared at our Agricultural College. Is in plain language. Is practical. Will add dollars, this winter, to the income of the man who will follow it.

Who will be first? It will be interesting to see who are the ones who try to secure these copies.

Wool Sold.

Farmers pooled more wool with the State Farm Bureau this year than last. The managers have already sold half of it.

Receive Honors.

Joseph Mullinger, Beaver Creek Tp. enjoyed a free trip to the State Fair at Detroit as a result of his hard study on the subject of agriculture.

RESCUING OF FISH TO BE FILMED AS UNUSUAL EVENT.

Traverse City, Oct. 17.—So interested has the state conservation department become in the rescuing of the perch at the Hannah & Lay Mercantile Co. dam on the Boardman river that it is sending James McGilvrey here to take motion pictures of the work. The fish continue to run up the river in untold numbers and A. T. Stewart, superintendent of state fish hatcheries, still is in the city supervising the rescue work and will remain here until the fish cease to run. Thus far 15 carloads of fish have been taken from the river in addition to the countless numbers carried over the dam and those hauled away by trucks to the nearby lakes.

One of the theories advanced for the immense run of perch this fall is that the hot weather of last summer furnished ideal hatching conditions and the resultant large surplus of perch is seeking more water. A car of the perch was taken to Walloon lake Sunday and it is planned to ship two carloads to the upper peninsula lakes next week. The camera man will arrive here next Thursday to start the filming of the rescue work. These films will then be furnished to sporting clubs and in other ways used to further conservation work.

THE GREATEST RIVERS.

In the development of a new country the early settlers invariably follow the rivers from the coast. The inland waterways are of the highest importance to the welfare of a country, for they aid in the development of unsettled areas and materially reduce the expense for transportation of the necessities of life. Even though a stream may not be navigable for any craft larger than a canoe, it may serve as a guiding line to the first explorer.

There are comparatively few rivers whose exact lengths are known, but the following list of lengths of the principal rivers of the world has been compiled by the United States Geological Survey, Department of the Interior, from various sources and is probably as nearly accurate as any other to be had. The United States has the distinction of containing within its borders the longest river system in the world—the Mississippi-Missouri. Distances given in even hundreds of miles are approximate:

MAIL LEFT IN SACKS SENT IN FOR REPAIR; HAYS IS CHECKING UP.

Washington, Oct. 16.—An explanation of why in many cases "that letter never came" is believed by Postmaster-General Hays to have been found in the revelation that, on an average, 70 pieces of mail are found daily in sacks and pouches sent to the mailbag repair shop in Washington.

About 8,000 sacks are received daily at the repair shop and these something like one out of every 100, according to figures furnished Mr. Hays is found to contain a piece of mail, ranging from registered or special delivery letters to fourth-class parcels.

Considering there are 7,500,000 sacks and nearly 1,000,000 pouches used in the postal service, about 2,500,000 of which on an average are stored for periods running from months to years Mr. Hays believes a search will possibly bring to light much mail matter unaccounted for.

The postmaster-general has sent out an order to all points where the sacks and pouches are stored for an immediate inspection and "shaking down" of each. Such mail if found, will be specially marked and forwarded so that the addressee may know the cause of the delay. The order also provides that postmasters are to be held strictly responsible and must see that every sack in the future is thoroughly inspected before it is cast aside.

THERE'S OODLES OF ROOM FOR ALL.

Speaking of enemies, don't have them. Don't fight. Don't get even. Ignore. Life is too short for grudges and vengeance. Go on. Let the other fellow stew. You keep sweet. Nothing can punish him worse. If a man doesn't like you, keep away from him. It's a large roomy world. And, thank God, there is always another side of the street.—(Frank Crane.)

Studebaker

This is a Studebaker Year

We have been asked the question how we account for the tide of Studebaker popularity which has swept the country.

Among others, two fundamental causes explain it:

1. The outstanding cause is the value of Studebaker Cars, in quality, style, performance, durability, and price, demonstrated by the complete satisfaction and enthusiasm of nearly one-half million owners who know values.
2. The universal respect for and confidence in the integrity of the name STUDEBAKER which for seventy years has been the symbol of quality and fair dealing.

Crowning proof of the dependability of Studebaker cars is reflected in our diminishing business in service parts.

With approximately 116,000 more Studebaker cars in operation on September 1st, 1921, our parts business the first eight months of this year was 3% less than in the same period two years ago.

While our car manufacturing plants operated this year 41% ahead of last year, our service parts manufacturing plant has operated at from one-half to two-thirds of last year.

Studebaker Cars are standing up in service and staying out of repair shops, to a degree unexcelled, we believe, by any cars of whatever price.

JOY BROUGHT INTO HOMEBy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Restoring
Mrs. Benz to Health

Altoona, Pa.—"I am writing to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. We have had six children almost at birth. From one hour to nineteen days is all they have lived. As I was going to have another, I took a dozen bottles of your Vegetable Compound and I can say that it is the greatest medicine on earth, for this baby is now four months old and a healthier baby you would not want. I am sending you a picture of her. Everybody says, 'That is some healthy looking baby.' You have my consent to show this letter."—Mrs. C. W. Benz, 131 3rd Ave., Altoona, Pa.

No woman can realize the joy and happiness this healthy babe brought into the home of Mrs. Benz, unless they have had a like experience.

Every woman who suffers from any ailments peculiar to her sex, as indicated by backaches, headaches, bearing-down pains, irregularities, nervousness and "the blues" should not rest until they have given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation, send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Rumania and Its Capital

Rumanian Girl Coming From Market.

By JOHN OLIVER LA GORCE.

With unsettled Russia just over her border, and the border itself in dispute, Rumania is conducting a watch on the Danube, the boundary which she claims, as vigilant as any that was ever set on the Rhine. Rumania has organized her government in Bessarabia, but the Russians have never consented to the severance of this former Russian province, and each movement of soviet troops toward the Danube has set Europe aflutter for fear a new war will break out in her southeastern corner.

However, it is not Bessarabia nor the other war-gained territories that have doubled Rumania's size, that is in the mind of the average person when Rumania is mentioned. He thinks rather of the pre-war nucleus, the little kingdom that since the Turk was pushed south, has stood enfolded by the lower Danube, the River Pruth and the Transylvanian Alps.

In the whirlpool of racial rivalries of southeastern Europe—where Roman and Goth, Hun and Slav, Magyar and Mongol, with all of their descendant peoples, have run over one another and been run over in their turn—fate left the Rumanians in the majority in a territory of more than 90,000 square miles. It scattered more than 12,000,000 of them over these lands—more than 7,000,000 in old Rumania and some 5,000,000 elsewhere.

The old Rumania was a country of 33,000 square miles, with a population of less than 8,000,000. It was thus slightly larger than Pennsylvania, although it had half a million fewer people than the Keystone state. The new Rumania has an area of 122,000 square miles and a population of 17,000,000.

The country is governed by a king, who is a constitutional monarch, and a parliament made up of a senate and a chamber of deputies. The pre-war constitution was rather reactionary, with the masses practically disfranchised. The new constitution, however, is more liberal, providing voting by all citizens over 21 years of age, paying taxes.

Small Farms and Big Estates.

Industrially Rumania is almost entirely given over to agriculture, and, area for area, it produces more cereals than any other great grain-producing nation in the world. Before the World War its farm lands were about equally divided between the small farmer and rich land-owner. There were about a million farmers with an average size of eight acres, and then there were over 4,000 estates with an average size of 2,200 acres. Since the conclusion of the World War steps have been taken to break up many of these large estates and to create a body of peasant proprietors.

The result of the occurrence of both huge estates and tiny farms is that one finds the strangest contrasts in farming methods. Here is a big estate where every sort of farm machinery that the United States has to offer is to be found—the binder, the mower, the steam gang plow, the riding cultivator, the manure spreader and even the steam header and thrasher. And then there are a hundred small farmers who still harvest their grain with the sickle, thresh it with the flail, or tread it out with oxen and winnow it with the home-made fork. They mow their grass with the scythe, make it with the hand rake and haul it in with ox carts. But even with the very primitive methods that characterize half of the farming of the country, they manage to coax a rather bountiful crop out of the soil.

The great bulk of Rumania's population belongs to the peasant class, for there are comparatively few cities and most of them are small. Many of the peasant families have lived for genera-

Pulled Teeth With Fingers

The work of old-time Chinese dentists is ludicrously primitive. The operator extracts all teeth with his finger. From youth to manhood he is trained to pull pegs from a wooden board, and this training changes the aspect of the hand, and gives him a finger grip that is equivalent to a lifting power of three or four hundred pounds. For toothache he employs opium, peppermint oil, cinnamons on the great estates, farming for the absentee landlords.

An interesting class the Rumanian peasants form, with their peculiar customs, their striking superstitions, their primitive ways of looking at things in general.

No Race Suicide Here.

The evil of race suicide has never invaded rural Rumania. It is regarded as worthy of honor to be the head of a numerous family. As in all lands where many of the people are more or less illiterate, there is a high death rate, though the fact that the bottled baby is almost unknown in peasant Rumania tends to overcome the high infant mortality that would otherwise result.

"Many hands make light work" is a proverb of the Rumanian peasant, often put into practice. Almost every night there is a neighborhood gathering like the old-fashioned apple-cutting or apple-butter holding in early American rural history.

One-third of the area of the country toward the north and west is inhabited by semi-civilized shepherds. Up in the Carpathians in summer and down in the sheltered valleys in winter they lead their flocks, sleeping in the open with them and despising any other shelter than that which primitive nature and the starry sky afford. They seldom speak; indeed, their solitary lives leave them little opportunity for conversation.

But if there is primitive simplicity in Rumanian peasant life, there is no formality in the polite circles of Bucharest, the national capital. "The Paris of the East," its inhabitants proudly call their city, and in the character of its architecture, the ways of its people, the prices in force at its hotels, it justly deserves the title it has so charmingly assumed.

Bucharest a Lively City.

This near-eastern metropolis is about equal in size to our own national capital, and yet it has twenty times as many restaurants and cafes, ten times as many streets lights and twice as many theaters. It is regarded as the most expensive place in the world for the well-to-do and the cheapest for the poor. Prices at the Hotel du Boulevard are higher than in New York or London, and travelers who have visited Monte Carlo's leading hotels and then journeyed to Bucharest have found its rates from 15 per cent to 25 per cent higher than those obtaining in the hostleries of Monaco.

But if their prices are high, their service and their food leaves nothing to be desired. The cuisine of the leading hotels and private homes is French, and money is no consideration—quality is paramount. Some of the finest restaurants east of Paris are in Bucharest, and the night life, with its passionate, pulsating gypsy music, its sparkling wine, its beautiful women, its scintillating jewels, its handsome men, is as gay and alluring as anything the world has to offer.

As to clothes, everybody who pretends to dress at all dresses in the mode of Paris and the gowns of the elite are as up-to-the-minute as those to be seen on the Champs Elysees. Gambling flourishes openly and high stakes are the rule rather than the exception. Many of the players own farms as big as an American county and their incomes are proportionately large.

Surrounded on every side by the Slavic sea—the deep ocean of Russia, the bay of Serbia and the gulf of Bulgaria—who can say whether in future centuries the attrition of the Slavic tide will wear away the Rumanian shore, or whether the great war will have fixed political boundaries that will be as firm as the geographic boundaries themselves?

mon oil and clove oil. Sometimes he fills teeth, but he does it so poorly that the fillings fall out after a few months. There is an element of superstition in his work, for he asserts that all dental troubles are brought on by tooth worms, and he always shows the nerve pulp to the patient as such a worm. For humbugging purposes, also, the dentist carries about in his pocket some white grubs, and after he has extracted a tooth he shows a grub to the sufferer as the cause of all the trouble.

HAS 20 STALLS FOR COWS

Two Large Silos Are Provided for

By WILLIAM A. RADFORD.

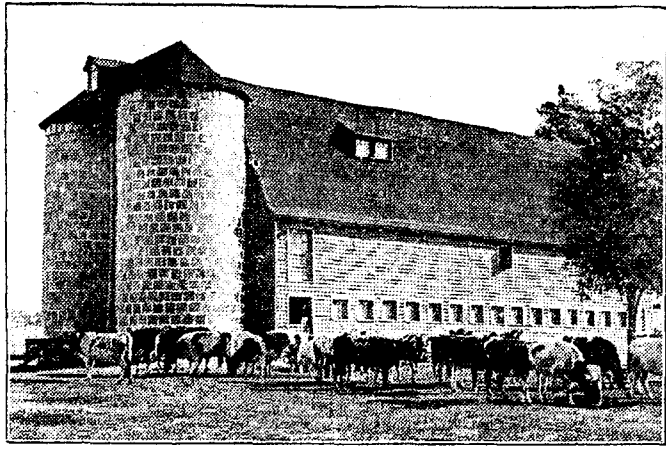

Mr. William A. Radford will answer questions and give advice FREE OF COST on all subjects pertaining to the subject of building work on the farm, for the readers of this paper. On account of his wide experience as Editor, Author and Manufacturer, he is, without doubt, the highest authority on all these subjects. Address all inquiries to William A. Radford, No. 1827 Prairie avenue, Chicago, Ill., and only inclose two-cent stamp for reply.

"It's an ill wind that blows no good" is a saying as old as time and every day it has cause for application. When the period of deflation through which we are now passing first started, the farmer was one of the first to be hit by declining prices. In the face of a bumper crop he had enormous of the rows of stalls. This litter carrier track passes out through the far door to the manure pit.

There are two rows of cow stalls facing toward the outside. In this arrangement the cows get the benefit of individual windows and are provided with plenty of light and air. There are also individual drinking cups in front of each stall to keep a constant supply of water available for the animals. Fresh water helps to increase milk supply. There are ten stalls in each row, each stall partitioned off by steel partitions and each one equipped with the modern type of stanchion. At the end of the barn are two cow pens.

The keeping of cows has become one of the greatest industries in the world. In building a house for the herd the health, comfort and cleanliness of the cows must be considered because they are the important factors in production. Moreover, the health, ease and efficiency of the men are also important. Today the farmer can secure a satisfactory barn like that shown in the illustration, a barn that will be a real home for his cows in which they may live and produce efficiently and profitably. It will also be a workshop for men and his boys who some day will take over the farm and continue in their father's footsteps. If he is too shortsighted to recognize the value of a modern barn with labor-saving devices and equipment and a pleasant design, he may not have the sons with him to take over the farm. Invariably they leave the farm as soon as they can get away. Better farm stocks on hand which he either had to keep or sell for a greatly reduced price. On first thought this situation looked very bad, but there are some compensating features as we shall see. In many cases, rather than sell his grain at a loss, the farmer turned his attention to increasing his dairy herd so that he could use his crop for feed. He had plenty of grain and could still get a price for dairy products. As a result the dairy business has gone along and acted as a buffer for the farmer against complete stagnation.

That is one big reason why the dairy barn has become so important. The farmer has realized at last that he can only have a productive herd if he handles and houses his cattle efficiently. No better medium is available than a good well-built and equipped dairy barn. Plenty of health-giving sunshine not only stimulates the animals but acts as a disinfectant against disease. Fresh air is an antidote for many ills which cows are subject to. Humane conditions are now as important in the barn as they are in the home.

As an example of a real up-to-date dairy barn replete with the latest equipment and representing an excellent type of construction, we offer this dairy barn. A second look is not needed to convince yourself of its solidity and permanency. It is built to endure, to survive the weathering buildings are solving the "boy" problem on the farm better than any other single agency. In the past, boys have left the farm because of the long hours and the back-breaking work. The dairy barn was the main source of trouble and the big cause of discontent. Trucking litter by wheelbarrows was drudgery and the boys invariably broke under the grind. The carrier has lifted this load from their shoulders, and scientific planning of the barn stalls has eliminated many burdensome tasks. Modern dairy barns make farming a pleasure as compared with the old systems.

Can't Back Cars.

"Ever notice how the galls drive a car?" inquired the garage helper. "Not particularly? Well, you might. The janes drives along the streets like they owned the burg, snaks by the cops an' trolleys an' gets away wit' moider generally, but when they comes in the garage to put up the boat for the day they falls down."

"Most of 'em steps on the exillibrator an' drives in speedy, but they don't roll their place, but leaves the car on the floor, careless like, an' says, 'you'll put it away, won't you, boy?'"

"There's a reason. Most of the dames don't know how to back up. The reverse gear means nothin' in their young lives. They usually have to go around the block when they want of storms and seasons. Set on a solid concrete foundation and floor, this building is frame with a high well-covered gambrel roof of the plank-frame type allowing a large unobstructed haymow and storage room.

At one end of the barn are two large spacious hollow tile silos of large capacity. They open into the feeding room at this end of the building and can easily take care of a good supply of winter green feed. A carrier track leads from the silos to the two feed alleys along the outside walls of the barn, the stalls facing out. This carrier track also runs over the central litter alley in back to go back the way they came from. Watch 'em an' see if I ain't right."—New York Sun.

Unique Wedding Certificate.

On the island of Jersey there is a curious but pretty marriage custom. As soon as the ceremony is over, and when the happy couple is entering into occupation of its house, the large granite slab over the porch is inscribed with the initials of the bride and bridegroom, and between the two a rough representation of two hearts is entwined, the whole thus forming a unique marriage certificate for all the world to see.

Great Men of Culture.
The great men of culture are those who have had a passion for diffusing, for making prevail, for carrying from one end of society to the other, the best knowledge, the best ideas of their time; who have labored to divest knowledge of all that was harsh, uncouth, difficult, abstract, professional, exclusive; to humanize it, to make it efficient outside the clique of the cultivated and learned, yet still retaining the best knowledge and thought of the time, and a true source, therefore, of sweetness and light.—Matthew Arnold.

NOT TO BE SENT BY MAIL

Remarkable Number of Things on Which Strict Restrictions Have Had to Be Placed.

It is easy to understand why you may not send tobacco to Peru, Morocco, Greece and several other countries, because the governments concerned hold a monopoly of the article. The same reason applies to Serbia, Algeria and Tunis with regard to playing cards.

But the reason why certain other objects may not be sent through the post to various lands is not so obvious. Why, for instance, may not one send a feeding bottle to Algeria? Or a police whistle to Nicaragua? Or jam to Mexico?

Prison-made goods are refused admission by many countries. Patent medicines are forbidden entrance into Algeria, Rumania, Sierra Leone and Italy. Trinidad won't have rat killer, while old clothes are rejected by the Caroline and Marian Islands.

It is not altogether surprising that

WOULDN'T STAND FOR REBUKE

Beggar Woman Had Her Own Point of View Concerning "Business" She Was Engaged In.

Secretary Lawson Purdy of the Charity Organization society said at a dinner in New York:

"Professional beggars are a self-righteous crew. What I mean is that they regard their trade the same as you and I regard honest work. One winter afternoon I came on a beggar woman I knew of old. She was begging in a bitter wind on a corner, and three little children in calico rags shivered at her side.

"You—Jane," I said reproachfully. "You—begging! And those three little ones! They aren't really yours at all!"

"Well, dammit," said the beggar woman. "I wouldn't have to beg so hard if they were really mine; for then I wouldn't be forking over a dollar a day to hire them."—Los Angeles Times.

The Place for Alphonse.
"Alphonse," said the waitress, "I have been thinking."

"Thinking of me, precious?" asked Alphonse.

"Indirectly, yes; I have been thinking that if you married me, everybody would say you only did so to get my money."

"What care I for the unthinkable world?"

"But, Alphonse, I will marry you." "My own dear—"

"And I will not have people say unkind things about you, so I have arranged to give my fortune to the missionaries. Why, Alphonse, where are you going?"

Alphonse paused long enough on his way to the door to look back and mutter: "I'm going to be a missionary."

Can't Fool 'Em.
Two colored gentlemen were engaged in conversation when one of them became very much annoyed by the persistent attention of a large fly.

"Sam, what kin' a fly am dis?"

"Dis am a boss fly."

"A boss fly an' a fly what buzzes 'round cows, 'n' horses 'n' jackasses?"

"You ain't makin' out for to call me no jackass?"

"No, I ain't makin' out for to call you no jackass, but you can't fool dem boss flies."—Forbes Magazine.

You remember the story of the Pitcher—

It made a good many trips to the well and it came back in good order.

"I can take care of myself," it said—"they don't need to talk about risks to me."

But it went once too often.

After that it was only part of a pitcher, and they didn't need to talk to it about risks—it knew.

A lot of people won't believe coffee can harm them until it does harm them.

"Nonsense!" they say, "it never disturbs me."

When it does disturb them, then they know.

Often the disturbance which they then recognize is the result of irritations to nerves and digestion which have been going on for a long time.

If you have to lie awake at night and count the clock ticks, after an evening cup of coffee, then you know that it's better to be safe than sorry.

The risk of coffee's harm is gone when the meal-time drink is Postum.

Here's a delightful and satisfying table beverage, with charm for the taste and without harm for nerves or digestion. You know you're on the right road with Postum; there's never the possibility that you'll go once too often.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of large bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

His "Tips."

Young Little liked a "little bit on," but unfortunately he had not the skill, or perhaps it was only the luck, to pick winners.

On looking through his racing paper one morning he saw a tipster's advertisement.

"Two sure things for $5."

He purchased a money order for the required amount, and wrote off straightaway to the address in the advertisement.

But the advertiser was a sharper man than King Little in reply Little received the following note:

"Dear Sir: As advertised, my 'sure things' are:

"Louse Button—Sure to come off."

"Dirty Carpet—Wants some beating."

Reinforced.

Two contractors of a type unfortunately too familiar were talking of some buildings which had collapsed before they were finished.

"Well, Billerton," said one, "you always have better luck than I do."

"Better luck? How's that?"

"Why, my row of new houses blew down in last week's wind, you know, while yours weren't harmed. All were built the same—same woodwork, same mortar, same everything."

"Yes," said the other, "but you forget that mine had been papered."

Like the Old Folks.

A bachelor who is forever putting his foot in it, recently visited the proud parents of a new boy.

The mother held up the bundle for the inspection of the bachelor and asked gaily: "Tell us, now, frankly, which of us do you think he is like?"

After a careful examination of the little bachelor answered: "Well, Marie, of course, intelligence has not yet dawned in his face, but he's wonderfully like both of you."

A Business Deal.

"Remember, I don't know anything about business. In business matters I'm a baby."

"Can't deal with you then. A baby wants it all. Send me somebody who does know something about business."

A Story of the Builders of Democracy

CAPTAIN LINCOLN.

Synopsis.—Samson and Sarah Traylor, with their two children, Josiah and Betsey, travel by wagon from their home in Vergennes, Vt., to the West, the land of plenty. Their destination is the Country of the Sangamon, in Illinois. At Niagara Falls they meet John McNeil, who also decides to go to the Sangamon country. Sarah's ministrations save the life of Harry Needles and he accompanies the Traylor. They reach New Salem, Illinois, and are welcomed by young Abe Lincoln, Jack Kelso and his pretty daughter Elm and others. Samson raises his cabin. Lincoln thrashes Armstrong. Harry strikes Bap McNeil. Harry is attacked by McNeil and his gang, and Elm drives off his assailants with a shot gun. McNeil is markedly attentive to Ann Rutledge. Lincoln is in love with Ann, but has never had enough courage to tell her so. Harry loves Elm. Traylor helps two slaves, who had run away from St. Louis. Elphilel Biggs, owner of the slaves, has his arm broken by Traylor. Biggs meets Elm and makes love to her.

CHAPTER VIII.

Wherein Abe Announces His Purpose to Be a Candidate for the Legislature, at Kelso's Dinner Party.

Harry Needles met Elm Kelso on the road next day, when he was going down to see if there was any mail. She was on her pony. He was in his new suit of clothes—a butternut background striped into large checks.

"You look like a walking check-board," said she.

"This—is this my new suit," Harry answered, looking down at it.

"It's a tiresome suit," said she impatiently. "I've been playing checkers on it since I caught sight of you, and I've got a man crowned in the king row."

"I thought you'd like it," he answered, quite seriously, and with a look of disappointment. "Say, I've got that razor and I've shaved three times already."

"Don't tell anybody," he warned her. "They'd laugh at me. They wouldn't know how I feel."

"I won't say anything," she answered. "I reckon I ought to tell you that I don't love you—not so much as I did, anyway—not near so much. I only love you just a wee bit now."

Harry's face fell.

"Do you—love—some other man?" he asked.

"Yes—a regular man—mustache, six feet tall and everything. I just tell you he's purty."

"Is it that rich feller from St. Louis?" he asked.

"She nodded and then whispered: 'Don't you tell.'"

"The boy's lips trembled when he answered. 'I won't tell. But I don't see how you can do it.'"

"Why?"

"He drinks. He isn't respectable."

"That's a lie," she answered quickly. "I don't care what you say."

Elm touched her pony with the whip and rode away.

Harry staggered for a moment as he went on. His eyes filled with tears. It seemed to him that the world had been ruined. On his way to the village he tripped and convicted of being no fit place for a boy to live in. Down by the tavern he met Abe, who stopped him.

"Howdy, Harry!" said Abe. "You look kind of sick. Come into the store and sit down. I want to talk to you."

Harry followed the big man into Offutt's store, flattered by his attention. There had been something very grateful in the sound of Abe's voice and the feel of his hand. The store was empty.

"You and I mustn't let ourselves be worried by little matters," said Abe, as they sat down together by the fire. "Things that seem to you to be as big as a mountain now will look like a mole hill in six months. You and I have got things to do, partner. We mustn't let ourselves be fooled. I was once in a boat with old Cap'n Chase on the Illinois river. We had got into the rapids. It was a narrow channel in dangerous water. They had to keep her headed just so or we'd have gone on the rocks. Suddenly a boy dropped his apple overboard and began to holler. He wanted to have the boat stopped. For a minute that boy thought his apple was the biggest thing in the world. We're all a good deal like him. We keep dropping our apples and calling for the boat to stop. Soon we find out that there are many apples in the world as good as that one. You have all come to a stretch of bad water up at your house. The folks have been sick. They're a little lonesome and discouraged. Don't you make it any harder by crying over a lost apple. You know it's possible that the apple will float along down into the still water where you can pick it up by and by. The important thing is to keep going ahead."

This bit of fatherly counsel was a help to the boy.

"I've got a book here that I want you to read," Abe went on. "It is the 'Life of Henry Clay.' Take it home and read it carefully and then bring it back and tell me what you think of it. You may be a Henry Clay yourself by and by. The world has something in it for every one if he can only find it. We're all searching—some for gold and some for fame. I pray God every day that he will help me to find my work—the thing I can do better than anything else—and when it is found help me to do it. I expect it will be a hard and dangerous search and that I shall make mistakes. I expect to drop some apples on my way. They'll look like gold to me, but I'm not going to lose sight of the main purpose."

When Harry got home he found Sarah sewing by the fireside, with Joe and Betsey playing by the bed. Samson had gone to the woods to split rails.

"Any mail?" Sarah asked.

"No mail," he answered.

Sarah went to the window and stood for some minutes looking out at the plain. Its sere grasses, protruding out of the snow, blazed and bent in the wind. In its cheerless winter colors it was a dreary thing to see.

"How I long for home!" she exclaimed, as she resumed her sewing by the fire.

Little Joe came and stood by her knee and gave his oft repeated blessing: "God help us and make His face to shine upon us."

She kissed him and said: "Dear comforter! It shines upon me every time I hear you say those words."

"Would you mind if I called you mother?" Harry asked.

"I shall be glad to have you do it if it gives you any comfort, Harry," she answered.

She observed that there were tears in his eyes.

"We are all very fond of you," she said, as she bent to her task.

Then the boy told her the history of his morning—the talk with Elm, with the razor omitted from it.

"Well, Harry, if she's such a fool, you're lucky to have found it out so soon," said Sarah. "She does little but ride the pony and play around with a gun. I don't believe she ever spun a hank o' yarn in her life. She'll get her teeth cut by and by."

Then fell a moment of silence. Soon she said:

"There's a bitter wind blowing and there's no hurry about the rails, I guess. You sit here by the fire and read your book this forenoon. Maybe it will help you to find your work."

So it happened that the events of Harry's morning found their place in the diary which Sarah and Samson kept. Long afterward Harry added the sentences about the razor.

One evening Sarah and Samson, with Harry, went to a debate in the tavern on the issues of the day, in which Abe won the praise of all for an able presentation of the claim of internal improvements. During that evening Alexander Ferguson declared that he would not cut his hair until Henry Clay became President, the news of which resolution led to a like insanity in others and an age of unexampled hairiness on that part of the border.

For Samson and Sarah the most notable social event of the winter was a chicken dinner at which they and Mr. and Mrs. James Rutledge and Ann and Abe Lincoln and Doctor Allen were the guests of the Kelso. That night Harry stayed at home with the children.

Kelso was in his best mood.

"Come," he said, when dinner was ready. "Life is more than friendship. It is partly meat."

"And mostly Kelso," said Doctor Allen.

"Ah, Doctor! Long life has made you as smooth as an old shilling and nimbler than a sapphire," Kelso declared. "And, speaking of life, Aristotle said that the learned and the unlearned were as the living and the dead."

"It is true," Abe interposed. "I say it, in spite of the fact that it slays me."

"You? No! You are alive to your finger tips," Kelso answered.

"But I have mastered only eight books," said Abe.

"And one—the book of common sense, and that has wised you," Kelso went on. "Since I came to this country I have learned to beware of the one-book man. There are more living men in America than in any land I have seen. The man who reads one good book thoughtfully is alive and often my master in wit or wisdom. Reading is the gate and thought is the pathway of real life."

"I think that most of the men I know have read the Bible," said Abe.

"A wonderful and a saving fact! It is a sure foundation to build your life upon."

Kelso paused to pour whisky from a jug at his side for those who would take it.

"Let us drink to our friend Abe and his new ambition," he proposed.

"What is it?" Samson asked.

"I am going to try for a seat in the legislature," said Abe.

The toast was drunk, and by some in water, after which Abe said:

"If you have the patience to listen to it, I'd like to read my declaration to the voters of Sangamon county."

Samson's diary briefly describes this appeal as follows:

"He said that he wanted to win the confidence and esteem of his fellow citizens. This he hoped to accomplish by doing something which would make him worthy of it. He had been thinking of the county. A railroad would do more for it than anything else, but a railroad would be too costly. The improvement of the Sangamon river was the next best thing. He favored a usury law and said, in view of the talk he had just heard, he was going to favor the improvement and building of schools, so that every one could learn how to read, at least, and learn for himself what is in the Bible and other great books. It was a modest statement and we all liked it."

"Whatever happens to Sangamon, one statement in that platform couldn't be improved," said Kelso.

"What is that?" Abe asked.

"It's the one that says you wish to win the regard of your fellows by serving them."

Early in April an Indian scare spread from the capital to the remotest corners of the state. Black Hawk, with many warriors, had crossed the Mississippi and was moving toward the Rock River country. Governor Reynolds called for volunteers to check the invasion.

Abe, whose address to the voters had been printed in the Sangamon Journal, joined a volunteer company and soon became its captain. On the tenth of April he and Harry Needles left for Richland to go into training. Samson was eager to go, but could not leave his family.

Elm Kelso rode out into the fields where Harry was at work the day before he went away.

"I'm going away," the boy said, in a rather mournful tone.

"I hate to have you go. I just love to know you're here, if I don't see you. Only I wish you were older and knew more."

There was half a moment of silence. She ended it by saying:

"Ann and I are going to the spelling school tonight."

"Can I go with you?"

"Could you stand it to be talked to and scolded by a couple of girls till you didn't care what happened to you?"

"Yes; I've got to be awful careless."

"We'll be all dressed up and ready at quarter of eight. Come to the tavern. I'm going to have supper with Ann. She is just terribly happy. John McNeil has told her that he loves her. It's a secret. Don't you tell."

"I won't. Does she love him?"

"Devotedly; but she wouldn't let him know it—not yet. I reckon he'll be plumb anxious before she owns up. But she truly loves him. She'd die for him."

"Girls are awful curious—nobody can tell what they mean," said Harry.

"Sometimes they don't know what they mean themselves. Often I say something or do something and wonder what it means. Did you ever ride a horse sitting backwards—when you're going one way and looking another and you don't know what's coming?" she asked.

"What's behind you is before you and the faster you go the more danger you're in?" Harry laughed.

"Isn't that the way we have to travel in this world, whether we're going to love or to mill?" the girl asked, with a sigh. "We cannot tell what is ahead. We see only what is behind us. It is very sad."

Harry looked at Elm. He saw the tragic truth of the words and suddenly her face was like them. Unconsciously in the midst of her playful talk this thing had fallen. He did not know what to make of it.

"I feel sad when I think of Abe," said Harry. "He don't know what is ahead of him, I guess. I heard Mrs. Traylor say that he was in love with Ann."

"I reckon he is, but he don't know how to show it. He's never told her. I reckon he's mighty good, but he don't know how to love a girl. Did you ever see an elephant talking with a crow-ot?"

"Not as I remember," said Harry. "I never did myself, but if I did, I'm sure they'd both look very tired. It would be still harder for an elephant to be engaged to a crow-ot. I don't reckon the elephant's love would fit the crow-ot or that they'd ever be able to agree on what they'd talk about. It's some that way with Abe and Ann. She is small and spry; he is slow and high. She'd need a ladder to get up to his face, and I just tell you it ain't purty when ye get there. She ain't got a chance to love him."

"I love him," said Harry. "I think he's a wonderful man. I'd fight for him till I died. John McNeil is nothing but a grasshopper compared to him."

"That's about what my father says," Elm answered. "I love Abe, too, and so does Ann, but it ain't the hope to die, murrin' love. It's like a man's love for a man or a woman's love for a woman. John McNeil is handsome—he's just plumb handsome, and smart, too. He's bought a big farm and is going into the grocery business. Mr. Rutledge says he'll be a rich man."

"I shouldn't wonder. Is he going to the spelling school?"

"No, he went off to Richland today with my father to join the company. They're going to fight the Infjuns, too."

The shell sounded for dinner. Elm started for the road at a gallop, waving her hand. He unbuckled his team and followed it slowly across the black furrows toward the barn.

He did not go to the spelling school. Abe came at seven and said that he and Harry would have to walk to Springfield that night and get their equipment and take the stage in the morning. Abe said if they started right away they could get to the Globe tavern by midnight. In the hurry and excitement Harry forgot the spelling school. To him it was a tragic thing. Before he went to bed that night he wrote a letter to her.

APRON WORN AS ORNAMENT

Women of Czechoslovakia Don Garment With a View of Attracting Masculine Eyes.

In the villages and country portions of Czechoslovakia the women do not wear aprons as a badge of work. On the contrary the Czechoslovakia maid does not put her apron on when she enters the house—she dons it only when she is going out to capture the eye of some swain who long has paid her court. And these aprons usually are heirlooms. Green is the favorite color. Next in popularity come gold or yellow, silver, pink, blue, cerise and flaming rose. Usually the embroidery which display these colors are upon dark foundations. Some, however, are white. In both types gay ribbons sometimes play a part. And often the white mutton sleeves of the waists are gayly embroidered to complete the radiant effect the wearer's apron lends as she strolls down the street or along the country lane.

Their skirts are usually black and always short. Their stockings are for protection in their walks as well as for display. Some have small, bright designs knitted into the dull black. The waist-length jackets they wear are usually quite plain, save for the hand-made lace around the bust and on the sleeves. The head shawls sound the varying color note. But it is in the aprons that the love of color is more clearly shown.

BROUGHT VENDER TO TIME

Loyal Small Girl Convinced Him What a Very Important Person Her Daddy Was.

The admiration of four-year-old Mary Elizabeth for her father had been the cause of much comment in the family circle. Mary Elizabeth was simply filled with adoration, which seems entirely old-fashioned.

So when the circus came to town and the Magnificent said there could be a box party, and added to the thrill by volunteering to escort his daughter and her little playmates to see the wonders of the greatest show. During the very first part some bright eye chanced to discover a balloon vender. Immediately there was a unanimous vote that balloons were next in line, and Mary Elizabeth was dispatched hastily to bring the vender, dad, of course, keeping an eye on her retreating figure.

When she returned with the man and the whole crowd had been presented with the bright-colored balloons dad asked her how she had made out on the journey.

"Well," she informed him primly, "the man started to be very rude. I told him you wanted him to bring those balloons up to our seats, and he said he was busy and couldn't be bothered. Then I told him that he better come at once, 'cause he didn't know what an important person my dad is."—New York Sun.

Ancient Crown Preserved.

The old crown of the Lombards is still preserved in the Church of St. John the Baptist at Monza. It is made of six pieces and adorned with 22 jewels, 28 golden roses and 24 emeralds. It was brought from Palestine by the Empress Helena, and given by Pope Gregory I to the Lombard princess Theodelinda. The crown was used in crowning the Lombard kings and the German emperors as kings of Italy. Napoleon used it at Milan in 1805, and the Emperor Ferdinand in 1838. It was carried off by the Austrians in 1860, but restored to Monza in 1868.

Evil of Discontent.

Discontent is like ink poured into water, which fills the whole fountain full of blackness. It casts a cloud over the mind, and renders it more occupied about the evil which disquiets than about the means of removing it.—Feltman.

"Yes; and they've kept company most of the time since. All her relations seem to live with them."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

SLOW DRIVERS MUST LET OTHERS GO AHEAD.

It has been called to our attention by several of our auto drivers that at times they encounter other drivers who, not being in any hurry, or for some other reason, are not courteous about letting others pass ahead, and at times are known to deliberately "hog" the road, and either force the other car out into the soft dirt at the side of the road or make them trail behind. We also are told that some drivers seem to take delight in keeping a car back and whenever the rear wheels pass the driver in the head car will speed up just enough to keep the other driver from passing and then to make the other fellow feel in a more happy frame of mind, will look back with a Satanic grin.

O, most of you drivers has met this kind of "road hog" and know him well. The next time this thing occurs to you when you are in a hurry and you find the other fellow deliberately trying to block your advancement, just take a slip of paper out of your pocket and write thereon "Section 17 of Act No. 304 of the Public Acts of 1907 of the State of Michigan.

Hand him the slip and ask that he look up the reference. There is a strict law about that matter, and if drivers cannot learn common road courtesy in any other way perhaps their summons to appear in court under a criminal warrant, will teach them so that they will not forget.

Whenever a driver in the rear toots his horn signaling his desire to pass, the driver in the slower going auto must give up half the road, says the law, and a stiff penalty may be applied to the offender who fails to do so.

THIS IS PERSONAL

Prosperity, general Prosperity, local Prosperity, individual Prosperity, is a matter of PERSONAL effort.

Where each individual in a community personally gives the best thought, and the best effort, to the problems of life, that community will prosper, and you can set it down as an established fact that prosperity is much more contagious than depression.

Life is a PERSONAL matter; our own welfare is our first consideration; having taken care of that, we can give thought to the neighbors, and the community, and the nation. But just as surely as we give our personal welfare the consideration it demands, we at the same time contribute to the best interests of our neighbors, community and nation.

In rising from a depressed business condition, every individual should realize the personal responsibility he carries to throw off depression, whether it be local or national.

For instance, all over the United States, business is better this month than it was last month; it will be better next month than it is this month, because, as a nation, we are coming out of the clouds of depression, and we are coming out because individuals are making the effort to get all the lines of industry going again.

The Government has called to its councils important men to the end that in all parts of the country individual effort may be given to bring about a resumption of activity in all lines of industry.

We are making splendid headway, but we will get ahead so much faster if each individual will throw himself and herself into the battle to push things on.

Let's not hoard our money—fearful of trouble; money that is idle cannot grow; money held idly is a brake on business; money not in use is an obstacle to individual progress, and therefore to community and national growth.

Supposing we have made ventures that have not been successful—it does not follow that further ventures are going to be disastrous. If we kept to that line, there would be no growth in any direction. The perfect man or the perfect conditions have not yet come, but we have gained such dependable knowledge that we can base investments very safely.

Three things can be taken as reliable guides: First—is the product, a utility, or a necessity; Second—Do the men behind the product measure up to the proper stands of business integrity; Third—Is the organization behind the product and the men wisely built and under competent control? Given these three essentials and that industry will be a success beyond any question. It will surely prove a profitable investment.

Such propositions are before the people in every section of the country, and in their development, they are bringing national prosperity more rapidly than any other one influence.

There is not a man nor woman in Michigan, that cannot contribute powerful aid to the upbuilding of industry throughout the country. Most of them could contribute money, and thus make an investment highly profitable to themselves; and those who cannot invest money can contribute Good Will, and have the faith and courage to commend the new industry; to have faith in the established reputations of men and markets.

The great effort now being made by the Government, and the big business men of America is to find more employment for the workers of the country. When industry is humming and everybody is at work, wages are good, the retail merchants prosper—then everybody shares in the development and prosperity of the country.

It is all a personal matter, and I have no right to expect you to do any more than I do, and vice versa, you have no right to expect me, unaided by you, to bring about prosperity.

We have been asking the readers of this paper to buy our stock, because we have a product that is a national necessity; we have the Men behind the Product who will stand the keenest scrutiny as to business integrity; and we have the Organization, in the hands of as competent men as there are in America. We will make good money for our stockholders just as sure as the days come and go. You can help to bring about the operation of this Company quicker by buying our stock—you will put your idle money into earning immediately. You will help to establish in your own state a prosperous industry of which you are a part; you will be contributing personally to the welfare of yourself, your neighbor, your community, your nation.

Never mind the other fellow. Come in and be an active factor. Float with the "Red Blood" of the community. Don't let your life become stagnant and useless. Do your share to provide employment for everybody.

Not only do we urge you to buy our stock, but we urge you to patronize your merchants. Set your money going—keep it in circulation. Be optimistic. Carry with you an atmosphere of cheerfulness. Come on—be a Live Wire!

The first number of the entertainment course, under auspices of the Senior class, will be given next Wednesday evening in the school house. The attraction will be the Sterling Male quartette. Particulars about this attraction may be found on the last page of this paper. This is the first season in many years that a Lyceum course has been given here and it is quite a financial undertaking. It brings five distinct entertainments to that area of high class, and afford the public the best in these lines at very little cost to them. The Avalanche fully endorses this enterprise on the part of the Seniors and earnestly hopes that every family will encourage them in their efforts by purchasing a course ticket, entitling them to attend all five attractions. The price of a season ticket is $1.75 for adults and $1.00 for children. The names and dates of the entertainments may be found in the school notes, under the caption of T. N. T.

THE QUALITY STORE

Everybody dance at the Temple Saturday Eve., Oct. 29. Clark's Orchestra. Bill $1.00.

Hello, have you been at the Gift Shop lately? Well, you just ought to go down and see the new things they have there.

The members of Crawford County grange will serve a boiled dinner at G. A. R. Hall, Saturday noon November 5th. All are cordially invited to come and join in.

Miss Ingeborg M. Hanson is assisting the Sorenson Bros. store as bookkeeper until the first of the year. She is taking the place of Miss Fernie Armstrong, who is suffering with an attack of typhoid fever.

Supt. B. E. Smith, Principal Miss Fuller, Miss Gideon and Miss Woodward of the high school faculty, Mr. Morrow, Miss Lockoff and Miss Westcott of the grades are in attendance at the State Teachers meeting in Detroit. They left here Wednesday afternoon.

Olaf Sorenson & Sons have taken the agency for the Briscoe aut, made in Jackson, Herluf Sorenson, manager of the store was in Jackson first of the week and drove back one of the cars. This firm's agency will cover the territory of Crawford, Otsego, Antrim and Kalkaska counties.

Of interest to Grayling people will be the marriage of Miss Helen Reardon and Mr. Guy Peterson, that occurred in Detroit last Saturday. Mr. Peterson who recently completed a business course in Ferris Institute will accept a position as bookkeeper with the Johannesburg Manufacturing company at Johannesburg. Mrs. Peterson is the daughter of Mrs. J. M. Reagan of Royal Oak and a sister of Robert Reagan of this city and of Mrs. S. N. Insley of Detroit. She is a young lady of the highest character and is held in high esteem by all who know her. Mr. Peterson was born in Grayling and has always made his home here, and received his early education in the Grayling schools. The popular young couple have the congratulations and best wishes of a large circle of friends.

Local post 106 American Legion had a rousing meeting Monday evening when they initiated six new members into their order and also entertained a number of the boys of Roscommon post, whom they had invited to be their guests. The new members are Isaac Jenson, Edward King, Alvin Lachapelle, Fred Taylor and Orrin Hilton of this city and Ralph Hollowell of Roscommon. Initiation was followed by a fine luncheon and smoker and matters of interest were discussed. The boys proposed securing a site at Higgins lake for a camp, where legionnaires might go for recreation. It was also planned to observe November 11—Armistice day with a parade with ex-service men, band and school children to take part. There were about 30 members of Grayling post present at the meeting and twelve members of Roscommon post. It was a fine meeting and the boys of both posts enjoyed it very much.

COMING! A FAIR.

MELODIOUS FUNSTERS ARE THE NOTED STERLING MALE QUARTET

Peppy Program of Celebrated Vocal Group to Be Given Here—All Clever Platform Artists

STERLING MALE QUARTET.

The Sterling Male Quartet, four jolly boys who can really sing, have a surprise in store for lyceum folks when they appear here soon. They are essentially a singing quartet with voices quite out of the ordinary. They are more than this, however; they are good comedians who can entertain. They are fun makers and all-around entertainers who know how to put lots of good, clean "punch" into a lyceum program.

Standard songs and popular favorites in quartet music, with abundant solo offerings to bring the really fine voices to the front, make up the main part of the program. With duet, character impersonations, readings, special "stunts" and rollicking fun, they round out their program. Each member is a thoroughly trained professional singer. Both individually and collectively, the Sterling boys have made an excellent record in the concert and lyceum field.

FAIRM BUREAU NOTES.

Same chance awaits some other boy this year.

Clifford Merrill, of Beaver Creek Tp., will represent Crawford County Grange at Flint meeting of State Grange.

Trees at Low Price
The Forestry Department of our Agricultural College offers Norway spruce, Austrian pine, and white pine seedlings at six dollars per thousand for sale this fall.

Who will beautify the landscape with artistic groups, hedges or wind-breaks?

Sought by Commission.

County farm bureaus in Michigan have been asked to tell the Joint Congressional Committee of Agricultural Inquiry, now sitting at Washington, what the farmer paid for his necessities during the period of 1913-1921, inclusive, and to compare those figures with prices that he received for farm crops and products during the same period, says the State farm bureau.

The Commission seeks such information from every county farm bureau in the country to assist it in determining the causes which brought about the depression in agriculture as a business how to best remedy the present situation. The American Farm Bureau and State Farm Bureau Publications are cooperating in obtaining such data. September 28 the Michigan State Farm Bureau sent price survey questionnaires to every county farm bureau in the state.

Accurate records of the price farmers paid and received for commodities on March 1 and November 1 each year during that period are sought from local authorities as a barometer of general conditions during that time. What the farmer paid for food and clothing, house furnishings, production equipment, feeds, seeds, fertilizer and spray material, and what he received for various farm products are questions asked in the county questionnaire. Changes in quality, size, weight and so on in commodities purchased are also sought in the farm bureau's survey.

Resorters Help.
The coming of transient resorters and fishermen, and of those who build and stay several months within the county, help in many ways.

They buy groceries and camping supplies.

This helps our merchants. Many need transportation. This helps our jitney drivers. Meals they call for open markets for farmers eggs, butter, vegetables, meats. Their purchase of lands as resort property creates wild forties, assessed at a few dollars per acre to property often worth several thousand when built upon.

The lumber they buy helps local industry. Men get work building the camps and cottages. People get positions as cooks and caretakers. Farmers have chance to supply these summer homes with many products of the farm, and should prepare to furnish butter, eggs, milk, cream, chickens, lettuce, peas, radishes, onions, strawberries, new potatoes and sweet corn in dependable amounts and attractive form.

Government Says So, Too.

Your county agent could not keep back a smile of satisfaction on reading in the Weekly News Letter, for Oct. 5, 1921 published by U. S. Department of Agriculture, two and one-half columns praising green manure, and giving actual cases as proof.

We have "hollered" a lot this fall in favor of vetch and rye, or even weeds as green manure. It has not all fallen on deaf ears.

More than one has heeded it, as well as our suggestion about selecting seed corn, and hill selecting potatoes.

Good influences are going on. Here and there a farmer is taking up methods of the new agriculture.

We venture to say they will never regret it and that the number taking up improved ways will increase in Crawford County.

Account Books Free.

We have a dozen books, planned for keeping farm accounts, to give away.

Poultry House Plans.

Plans for a hen house just suited to our climate, and in which hens will thrive, can be seen at the county agent's office.

Safety First.

FORMING GOOD READING HABITS.

If parents wish their children to form good reading habits they must first form such habits themselves. And there is no better way to do this than to bring into the household a periodical that will be of interest to every member of it; that will supply the best reading for old and young. Among the periodicals of this description the Youth's Companion is unique. Not only does it aim to entertain and inform boys and girls in their teens, as its name suggests, but there is not a page in it that parents can pass over with indifference.

The 52 issues of 1922 will be crowded with serial stories, short stories, editorial poetry, facts and fun. Subscribe now and receive:

1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues in 1922.
2. All the remaining issues of 1921.
3. The Companion Home Calendar for 1922.
4. All for $2.50.

Or include McCall's Magazine in the monthly authority on fashions. Both publications, only $3.00.

To Gain a Good Reputation.

The way to gain a good reputation is to endeavor to be what you appear.

That is precisely the manner in which Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has gained its reputation as a cure for coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough. Every bottle that has ever been put out by the manufacturers has been fully up to the high standard of excellence claimed for it. People have found that it can be depended upon for the relief and cure of these ailments and that it is pleasant and safe to take.

A Good Physic.

When you want a physic that is mild and gentle in effect, easy to take and certain to act, take Chamberlain's Tablets. They are excellent.

How Better Than Pills?

The question has been asked—in what way are Chamberlain's Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is they are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then, they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and strengthen the digestion.
